UC Law SF (formerly UC Hastings) was founded in 1878 as the law department of the University of California and was the first law school in California. Over the years, it has built a legacy and reputation of being a preeminent institution comprised of renowned faculty committed to the study of legal theory and research, preparing students for careers in the judicial system, public service, and industry.

The College is redefining legal education through an experiential, interdisciplinary, and international approach to the law. By integrating rigorous academics with hands-on practice, the College is preparing its graduates to tackle modern legal challenges.

REPRODUCTIVE JUSTICE LEGAL FELLOW
Center for WorkLife Law

Classification: Level 1 / Class 2038 / Full-Time / Exempt / Benefited / Contract
Anticipated Hiring Rate: $50,000 - $65,000/year

THE DEPARTMENT
The Center for WorkLife Law, at the University of California College of the Law, San Francisco, is an advocacy and research organization that seeks to advance gender and racial equity at work and in education. Founded in 1997, WorkLife Law pioneered the area of law that protects working caregivers from discrimination and has been a national leader in the field ever since. WorkLife Law’s current initiatives include fighting for reproductive justice; preventing discrimination against family caregivers; equipping companies with tools to interrupt bias in the workplace; operating the nation’s first and only legal resource center for pregnant and parenting students; and ensuring equitable access to benefits for workers. The Center provides direct assistance to workers and students in need, while addressing structural inequality by developing and implementing concrete, evidence-based interventions and changing public policy at the state and national levels. WorkLife Law’s initiatives ensure families are able to build and maintain financial security through stable employment and educational opportunities.

THE ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITIES
The Legal Fellow will advance reproductive rights by providing direct assistance to callers on WorkLife Law’s free legal helplines; engaging in policy advocacy at the federal and state levels, and educating key stakeholders around the country on two new landmark workers’ rights laws: Pregnant Workers Fairness Act and PUMP Act. Reporting to the Deputy Director, the Legal Fellow will play an integral role on the Center’s legal team by supporting its reproductive justice initiatives. This is a 6-month contract position, with the possibility of extension depending on the availability of funding. Typical duties and responsibilities include:

- Conduct legal and social science research on employment discrimination based on pregnancy, lactation, childbirth motherhood, and abortion.
- Support the legal team’s advocacy with federal and state enforcement agencies, including researching and writing public comments on the anticipated proposed regulations interpreting the Pregnant Workers Fairness Act.
- Edit, draft, and update know-your-rights documents for workers and students, as well as educational materials for healthcare providers and other key audiences. This will include research and fact-checking to ensure these materials remain up to date.
• Maintain WorkLife Law’s legal case database by summarizing employment decisions relevant to pregnancy and lactation, abortion, caregiving, and family and medical leave.
• Under the supervision of a more senior attorney, respond to calls and emails from workers across the country seeking information about their legal rights at work related to pregnancy, childbirth, abortion, lactation, and caregiving. Analyze the situation by applying relevant laws, and identify advocacy and outreach strategies based on caller needs. Provide assistance to callers with compassion and care.
• Represent the Center in meetings with advocacy partners, as well as public presentations and interviews, as opportunities arise.
• Perform duties such as proof-reading reports, editing PowerPoint presentations, scheduling meetings, organizing files, and other limited administrative functions as needs arise.
